CLSI A One Health Perspective on Susceptibility Testing

The objective of the present study was to determine the in vitro antimicrobial susceptibility of Avibacterium paragallinarum isolates from infectious coryza outbreaks in Dutch commercial poultry, from 2008 till mid-2017. By using a broth microdilution method, minimal inhibitory concentrations (MICs) of 15 antimicrobial agents were assessed, and MIC 50 and MIC 90 values were determined.

1. Introduction. Antimicrobial susceptibility testing can be used for drug discovery, epidemiology and prediction of therapeutic outcome. In this review, we focused on the use of antimicrobial testing methods for the in vitro investigation of extracts and pure drugs as potential antimicrobial agents.. After the revolution in the "golden era", when almost all groups of important antibiotics ...

In vitro susceptibility testing of Capnocytophaga

In vitro susceptibility testing of Capnocytophaga is complicated by their relatively slow growth and need for fastidious growth requirements (facultative anaerobic; 5-10% CO2).No guideline for testing the antimicrobial susceptibilities of these organisms have been issued by the Clinical and Laboratory Standards Institute (CLSI) or other European guidelines (EUCAST, CA-SFM).

INTRODUCTION — The genus Aeromonas consists of gram-negative rods widely distributed in freshwater, estuarine, and marine environments []. Aeromonas species grow at a range of temperatures, although they are isolated with increasing frequency during warmer months (May through October in the Northern hemisphere).Aeromonas species cause a wide spectrum of disease syndromes among warm- and cold ...

INTRODUCTION. The term candidemia describes the presence of Candida species in the blood. Candidemia is the most common manifestations of invasive candidiasis. Candida in a blood culture should never be viewed as a contaminant and should always prompt a search for the source of the bloodstream infection. For many patients, candidemia is a manifestation of invasive candidiasis that could have ...
