The earliest depictions of the Nautilus are Hildibrand's many engravings (of Alphonse de Neuville's and Edouard Riou's drawings) that graced the pages of the original publications. The full submarine as shown submerged matches Verne's words although details are lacking in the long-range views. The deck views show more detail, although they are not strictly consistent.

Professor Rahu represents the cultural-boundary zones of human society. Wherever the common practice might presume a boundary, such as between ethnic cultures, between nation-states, between gendered spaces, between generational segments (old, young) between paradigms of belief, between social-economic classes, and countless other boundary zones -- these are the places where Rahu operates.
